Price Per Person (includes lunch): $20/per person

- 10:00 a.m. Arrive in Mount Vernon at the Abbe Creek School, Old Mount Vernon Road, West of Mount Vernon, on Old Lincoln Highway
- You will begin your day as a student of Mr. William Willcox, the first teacher at the school in 1844. You will find that Mr. Willcox takes his job very seriously. In his one-room classroom, students are expected to listen and be attentive. He will evaluate your reading and then teach a history lesson that includes both the Abbe Creek School history and the history of Mount Vernon. After your history lesson, you will take an 8th grade final exam and be dismissed for a step-on guided bus tour of Mount Vernon, including stops on the original Lincoln Highway bridge, and a brief stop on the campus of Cornell College.
- 10:45 a.m. Your guide will step onto your tour bus and tell you about the history of the Lincoln Highway through Mount Vernon. We will stop briefly at an original 1910 Lincoln Highway bridge, now used as a pedestrian bridge near Cornell College. And all tour guests will be able to get out of the bus and hike out onto the bridge and experience an actual Union Pacific train pass underneath.
- 11 a.m. Back on the bus for a tour through the campus of Cornell College.
- If interested, the group can get out and experience the 1870s King Chapel, a building that Frank Lloyd Wright once derided as “the most odious example of General Grant Gothic.”
- The bus tour will continue into Uptown Mount Vernon, including a drive across the Old U.S. Military Road. Learn about the buildings and culture of Mount Vernon and Cornell College. The tour group will then be driven to Lisbon to take a guided tour of the Lisbon History Center, an official tour stop on the Lincoln Highway. Here you will learn about small-town life from 1837 until today.
